Butt Crack(uelure)

Summary

I'm migrating my crack fics, so you might have already seen this.

Pssst, Beverly hissed, crouching beneath a gurney, although the morgue was empty save for Price and Zeller. "I have a plan."

Jimmy, huddled with Brian beneath a neighboring gurney, almost whispered a response, until Brian pinched his nose, beating him to the chase. "Does it involve giving new agents whoopie pies as apology gifts after sticking whoopie cushions on their seats this time? Because that was totally hazing." Jimmy let out a strangled sound, stifled by the vice grip Brian kept on his nose. "Whoopsie-daisy," he seemed to be saying.

"Hey, that was funny, but no. So you know how Will keeps staring at Lecter's ass, yeah?"

"So, Bev, you know how cows say 'moo', yeah?"

"Bev has a point," Jimmy wanted to say, but instead only managed a congested "Bev ass a boy".

Brian, contented by this response, let go of Jimmy's nose. "YEAH! Bev could feel him up!"

"Oh hell no. How many dogs did you say Will has? Anyhow, the man himself already thinks about killing people for a living." Despite the sense of humor she must have gotten from some unfortunately mutated gene or something, Bev did value her life.

"Judging from Will's reactions, that ass must be therapeutic, though... "

"Seliger tod," Brian interrupted.

"What?"

"It means blissful death," he explained.

"So you die this blissful death by looking at it, or by feeling it?" Although he felt a tad bit of jealousy, Jimmy's curiosity still won over. They were forensics, after all.

"OK, okay, you two, don't break up over this," Bev intervened, "but why don't we find out?"

So it was settled.

"Like dandelion seeds..." The ever poetic Dr. Lecter was waxing lyrical about murder again. That seemed like vaguely -- no, disturbingly familiar behavior, but that didn't matter in the face of the grand issue at hand.

Bev shot Brian a look, as if to say, you know what your mission is, right?

Brian nodded, and gave Jimmy an air kiss before subtly bumping his side into Hannibal's left ass cheek. His eyes shot open, and Jimmy's eyes instantly narrowed. Bev's eyebrows arched. Let me get a taste of that. But she didn't even have to try -- Lecter bumped into her himself. Her widened eyes said everything.

Trying to avoid snickering, Brian decided to save her: "We know that they're dead when they hit the water...".

The break room found the trio giggling like children caught sneaking, well, whoopie cushions onto people's seats. Not quite children, then.

"Did you hear what he said about -- what was it?"

"Craquelure?" Brian offered.

"Oh, Briiii-annn..." Jimmy began, but Beverly, ever quick to the chase, put herself between them before anything more disgusting than the body in the morgue could happen.

The room seemed to still for a moment. "So. Craquelure."

"I bet his crack could lure Will to any crime scene... ." Apparently the stillness was short-lived.

"And he said it becomes RIGID with age!"

"Will's making a mighty fine investment out there, then."

"You felt it for yourself!" Jimmy, a thirty-seven year old whose full name was Dr. Jeremy Price, stuck his bottom lip out comedically and pouted.

Luckily for Brian, Bev came to the rescue once more. "Shut it, both of you. The only one who's gonna do any real 'feeling' of that crack is Will-the-fisherman-Graham. Won't be too long before this lure's in his tackle box."

Not long, indeed.
